

1. Write a menu driven shell script :

1. Accept filename from user and displays its last modification time if file exists, otherwise display appropriate message.

2. Display calendar of June 1999.

3. To reverse the user given string.

2 Write a shell script to display the following menu and acts accordingly:

i. Calendar of the current month and year.

ii. Display "Good Morning/Good Afternoon/Good Evening" according to the current login time.

iii. User name, Users home directory.

iv. Terminal name, Terminal type.

3. Write a menu driven shell script to do the following:

1. To find number of ordinary files and directory files.

2. To reverse the user given string.

3. Machine name.

4. exit.

4. Write a menu driven shell script :

1. That takes a filename from the user and checks whether it is a directory file or not.

2. Display nos. of words of user given file

3. Count the number of lines in user given file

5. Write a shell script that displays the following menu and acts accordingly

1. Concatenates two strings

2. Renames a file

3. Deletes a file.

4. Copy the file to specific location

6. Write a menu driven shell script :

1. Count the number of lines in user given file

2. Show comparison of two user given files

3. Find common in two user given files

7. Write a menu driven shell script to

1. Delete all spaces in the given file
2. Count the active users in the system.
3. Date

8. Write a menu driven shell script :

1. To read a file name and find out whether it exists or not. If it exists create a copy of the same file with another name.
2. Find common in two user given files
3. Display all the words of a file in ascending order

9. Write a shell script that displays the following menu

- List home directory
- Date
- Print working directory
- Users logged in

Read the proper choice. Execute corresponding command. Check for invalid choice.

10. Write a menu driven shell script to :

1. Count the occurrence of the given word in a file
2. To display “Good Morning/Good Afternoon/Good Evening” according to the current login time.
3. Print working directory

11. Write a shell script to display the following menu for a particular file :

- i. Display all the words of a file in ascending order.
- ii. Display a file in descending order.
- iii. Toggle all the characters in the file. iv. Display type of the file.

12. Write a menu driven shell script to :

1. Find difference between two user given files
2. List all files containing the user given word.
3. Count the occurrence of the given word in a file

13. Write a menu driven shell script :

1. To toggle the contents of the file
2. To display five largest file from the current directory
3. List all files containing the user given word.

14. Write a shell script to display the following menu for a particular file:

- i. Display all the words of a file in ascending order.
- ii. Display a file in descending order.
- iii. Display a file in reverse order.
- iv. Toggle all the characters in the file v. Display type of the file.

15. Write a shell script that displays the following menu and acts accordingly

1. Combine two files in the third file horizontally and vertically.
2. To find a given date fall on a weekday or a weekend.
3. Display all the words of a file in ascending order